Dear Mr. Walker:

How, I wonder could you ever even consider the thought of giving permission to PaveItAll, Inc. to pave over the meadow of our beloved Jarrett Nature Center. All the flowers, rabbits, mice, you name it, will have lost their home sweet home because of some stupid parking lot! The meadow also provides food as well as a home and also serves as a valuable oxygen source. What you do to the meadow, you do to us!

First of all, if you allow PaveItAll to pave it all, many animals in the amazing life cycle of the meadow will lose their homes and their lives. That delicate cycle will be destroyed and you may think, well what does it do to us? Well I'll tell you what. When the meadows are gone, some flowers will become extinct. Next, insects will become extinct, then small animals, big ones, and then, the ones who started it all, the humans. Now that thought doesn't make you feel so good now, does it, Mr. Walker?

Second of all, most people think that people not having homes or food is a horrible, cruel thing. They are right, but, what about homeless, foodless animals? Ever think about that? Well the same goes, or should go, for animals big or small, intelligent or not.

Finally, every new parking lot and shopping center may give new places to waste your money, but it also takes away from our very own oxygen - the very air we breathe! Trees and plants support our very existence and you, along with many others, are taking it away. Shame, shame. I never thought that humans would hurt their own race but sadly, I was wrong.

In conclusion, Mr. Walker, I urge you to think twice about letting PaveItAll inc. pave over our beloved meadow. For the animals, beauty, and oxygen we get from the meadow, please deny PaveItAll Inc.'s request to pave over the meadow.

Sincerely,

Kayla C.
